Introduction

This publication provides information on recipients of Personal Independence Payment in Scotland at January 2022. Personal Independence Payment is replacing Disability Living Allowance for eligible working age people aged 16 to 64. This summary covers both new claims to Personal Independence Payment and claims made by those with an existing claim for Disability Living Allowance (known as Disability Living Allowance reassessments). The Background section has further detail about the payment.

A number of changes have been made to the structure and formatting of the tables in an aim to improve their accessibility. If you have any comments or suggestions that you would like to provide us around these changes or other developments, please email MI@socialsecurity.gov.scot.

All tables and charts relating to this publication can be found at:

Main Findings

Cases with Entitlement

- In January 2022, there were 305,279 people entitled to Personal Independence Payment in Scotland. Special rules for the terminally ill applied to 1.1% of these clients [Table 1].
- The four most common disabling conditions account for 81% of claims. The most common condition was 'Psychiatric disorders' with 38% of claims, followed by 'Musculoskeletal disease (general)' with 20%, 'Neurological disease' with 13% and 'Musculoskeletal disease (regional)' with 9% [Table 2].
- Around 55% of people entitled to Personal Independence Payment in Scotland were female, and 45% were male [Table 3].
- The number of cases with entitlement increases with age up to the most common age band of 60-64 with that age band accounting for 15% of cases with entitlement. From age 65 and over the number of cases decreases, with only 6% in the 70 and over age band. This is because people are generally unable to start a new claim for Personal Independence Payment after they reach State Pension Age (see Eligibility section) [Table 3].
- In the 16-19 age group, 63% of clients are male while 37% are female. From age 30 and above, more than half of clients are female [Table 3].

Mobility Award

- Around 73% of people entitled to Personal Independence Payment were receiving a Mobility Award in January 2022 [Table 4].
- Of those entitled to Personal Independence Payment, 44% were receiving the Enhanced Mobility Award, 29% were receiving the Standard Mobility Award, and the remaining 27% were not receiving a Mobility Award [Table 4].
- The proportions vary with age, with 57% of 16-19 year olds in receipt of Personal Independence Payment getting the Enhanced Mobility Award. This decreases to 35% for ages 30-34 and then increases again up to the age band of 70 and over, where 52% receive the Enhanced Mobility Award [Table 4].

Daily Living Award

- In January 2022, 96% of males and 97% of females entitled to Personal Independence Payment were receiving Daily Living Award [Tables 5a and 5b].
- Around 51% of males were receiving the Enhanced Daily Living Award compared to 46% for females [Tables 5a and 5b].
- For males, 46% were receiving the Standard Daily Living Award, and 4% were receiving no Daily Living Award [Tables 5a and 5b].
- For females, 51% were receiving the Standard Daily Living Award, and 3% were receiving no Daily Living Award [Tables 5a and 5b].
- The percentage of people receiving the Enhanced Daily Living Award is highest for 16-19 year olds. For males, 81% of 16-19 year olds receive the Enhanced Daily Living Award and for females this is 73%. This compares to between 43% and 53% for males and females in all age groups from 30 and above [Tables 5a and 5b].

Registrations and Reassessments

- There were 6,781 registrations for Personal Independence Payment in January 2022, 5% of which were reassessments<sup>4</sup> [Table 6]. Reassessments are currently only on a voluntary basis, and new invitations for reassessments are not yet being sent out, as explained further in the background section
- Special Rules for the terminally ill applied to 2% of registrations in January 2022 [Table 6].

Background to Personal Independence Payment

Personal Independence Payment is provided to support working age clients with some of the extra costs caused by long-term disability, ill health or terminal ill health.

Personal Independence Payment in Scotland

The Scotland Act 2016<sup>5</sup> gives Scottish Parliament powers over a number of social security benefits that had been administered to Scottish clients by the Department for Work and Pensions. From 1 April 2020, Personal Independence Payment became one of the benefits to have executive competency transferred from the Department for Work and Pensions to Social Security Scotland, the executive agency of Scottish Government that is responsible for delivering the social security benefits for Scotland.

There is a transitional period to allow administration of this benefit to be transferred, during which the Department for Work and Pensions will continue to administer Personal Independence Payment on Social Security Scotland's behalf. Adult Disability Payment, the Scottish replacement benefit for Personal Independence Payment, will begin receiving applications as part of a pilot from 21 March 2022. This will be followed by a gradual national rollout beginning on 29 August 2022.

Introduction of Personal Independence Payment

From 8 April 2013, the Department for Work and Pensions started to replace Disability Living Allowance for working age people with Personal Independence Payment. It began as a controlled start, for new claims from people living in a limited area in the North West and part of the North East of England. On 10 June 2013, Personal Independence Payment was introduced for new claims for the remaining parts of Great Britain.

From 28 October 2013, using a structured roll out to postcode areas, the Department for Work and Pensions has been inviting Disability Living Allowance working age recipients to claim Personal Independence Payment if:

- the department received information about a change in care or mobility needs which meant their claim had to be renewed;
- the client's fixed term award was due to expire;
- children turned 16 years old (unless they have been awarded Disability Living Allowance under the special rules for terminally ill people);
- or the client chose to claim Personal Independence Payment instead of Disability Living Allowance.

From July 2015, the remaining Disability Living Allowance working age recipients started to be invited to claim Personal Independence Payment. However, since 1 April 2020, Department for Work and Pensions stopped proactively sending these invites to working age Disability Living Allowance recipients who live in Scotland.

Additionally, any recipients of Disability Living Allowance for Children who live in Scotland and who turn 16 on or after 1st September 2020 will be able to continue getting Disability Living Allowance until they turn 18. However, they are still eligible to apply for Personal Independence Payment if they choose to.

Eligibility

You can get Personal Independence Payment whether you're working or not. It is non-means-tested, non-contributory and tax-free; it is not linked to a person's ability to work and it is available equally to people in or out of work. It is not intended to be a substitute for a person's earnings.

You must be aged 16 or over and usually have not reached State Pension age to claim. Personal Independence Payment can be claimed by adults under the State Pension age, and people already on the benefit when they reach State Pension age will continue to receive it if their condition hasn't changed.

You must also have a health condition or disability where you:

- have had difficulties with daily living or getting around (or both) for 3 months
- expect these difficulties to continue for at least 9 months

Personal Independence Payment is made up of two parts. You may get the mobility part of Personal Independence Payment if you need help going out of moving around. You may get the daily living part of Personal Independence Payment if you need help more than half of the time with things like:

- preparing or eating food
- washing, bathing and using the toilet
- dressing and undressing
- reading and communicating
- managing your medicines or treatments
- making decisions about money
- engaging with other people

The amount you get depends on how your condition affects you, not the condition itself. You'll be assessed by a health professional to work out the level of help you can get.

You usually need to have lived in England, Scotland or Wales for at least 2 of the last 3 years, and be in one of these countries when you apply. If you've recently returned from living in an European Economic Area country, you might be able to get Personal Independence Payment sooner.

There are different rules if you're terminally ill, where you can claim more quickly if your doctor or a medical professional has said you might have less than 6 months to live.

More information on eligibility can be found on the Department for Work and Pensions Personal Independence Payment webpage.

Registration and awards

A 'registration' is recorded when a client has completed the initial Personal Independence Payment claim process. Following this a client completes a 'Part 2' form, an Assessment Provider conducts an assessment, and DWP makes a decision on the application. Not all registrations will result in an award.

Personal Independence Payment is comprised of two components: daily living and mobility, both of which can be paid at enhanced or standard rate. A client's need for one component does not affect the need for the other component. Clients who are terminally ill and who are not expected to live more than 6 months are automatically entitled to the enhanced rate of the daily living component.

Personal Independence Payment 'claims with entitlement' statistics show a total for all entitled cases. It shows both the number of people in receipt of Personal Independence Payment and those with entitlement where the payment has been suspended (e.g. if they are in hospital or in prison at a point in time).

Impact of COVID-19

Operational measures implemented by Department for Work and Pensions in late March 2020 in response to COVID-19 included the suspension of routine reassessments of disability benefits i.e. Disability Living Allowance to Personal Independence Payment reassessments. Some Disability Living Allowance reassessment activity restarted in late July 2020 for voluntarily claims for Personal Independence Payment, although new invitations to apply for Personal Independence Payment for working age Disability Living Allowance clients are not currently being sent out.

COVID-19 provisions were put in place in late March 2020 and the Department for Work and Pensions continues to review and amend working practices where appropriate moving forwards.

About the data

How Personal Independence Payment data is collected
