To whom it may concern,

The proposed national ID card system is a matter of significant concern to me. As it stands, this proposal would build an ID card system in Scotland without democratic debate. You will of course remember that such a national ID scheme was rejected a few years ago.

This deserves proper scrutiny by the Scottish Parliament, civil society and the public. Creating an ID database in Scotland puts everyone's privacy at risk and the potential for misuse is high.

I appreciate your attention with this matter.

Sincerely,
